PRINCIPAL'S POST

The highlight of this week was without doubt World Book Day - Mrs Medland went to great lengths to ensure that all the children had a creative and novel experience.

Mrs Medland would like to thank everyone for their support on World Book Day! The children had an amazing day and enjoyed a range of activities around reading – drama, dance and creative writing.

Breakfast was well attended in the morning and the children and parents enjoyed a healthy breakfast, added story vocabulary to the story tree and stories with Mr Hill. It was also an opportunity for parents and children to explore the newly created indoor reading areas which are a welcome addition. Thank you to Seph Moir and Claire Thorne for their hard work and help to create these spaces, which were used by the reading buddies during reading time.

Mrs Medland led a reading assembly and thanked the children for the huge response in entering cakes and book covers for the competitions. Best decorated cake was won by Jess Cowling for her star cake from Peter Pan and the best book cover was won by Charlie Moir. It was difficult to judge as the standard was so high with so many entries.

After school the reading ambassadors ran a craft table where children could make book marks. Tea and cake was served and this was very well attended again. Thank you to all who provided cakes or attended. This is an event which will definitely be repeated in the future!

Class News

Class 1

This week in Class One, Hannah Jump was celebrated as writer of the week for her brilliant instruction writing. Overall, all the children improved greatly on their 'cold' write so well done to them all!

Children with their name in lights were Cameron Griffiths and Keira Jennings; Cameron for his improved attitude and learning and Keira for always respecting others (super manners at all times).

Class 2

Writer of the week- awarded to Isabelle for her excellent input into our innovate write.

Name in lights- Tristan for upholding the school values.

Name in lights- Ethan for persevering with his writing.

Class 3

In class 3 William produced an excellent persuasive advert about the latest Nerf gun, using vocabulary to great effect, and is awarded writer of the week. Ria also focused hard on this task and wins a 'name in lights' award for improving her work and concentrating hard. Arwen performed excellently in class and wins the values award for respect, for always being ready to learn and the first to listen.

Forest school

Chrissy, with only a couple of sessions remaining before leaving the school, allowed the children to be creative with clay and let their imaginations run wild this week. The children duly responded with several artistic masterpieces.
